

Contents

7	Preface
11	I The medieval castle – the fortified dwelling
27	II Denmark: the first stages
34	Known castles from the first half of the 12th century
	The Bastrup Tower
	Pedersborg
	Haraldsborg
	Søborg
48	The importance of location
	Lilleborg
	Refshaleborg
	Gammel Brattingsborg
61	III The castles of Valdemar the Great
68	Royal castles built by licence
	The Castle in Havn (Copenhagen)
	Kalundborg
81	IV Interlude – and more castles: the political background
101	V The century of the castle in Denmark
114	Kalø
127	Boeslum near Ebeltoft – The story of a castle
135	The castle mounds at Hald
148	Gunderslevholm – The history of a castle
166	The castles in royal hands at the time of Valdemar Atterdag's death
169	VI The castle in the late Middle Ages
178	Gjorslev
181	Glimmingehus
194	Jørgen Friis's castles
	Hald
	Spottrup
215	VII The castle in use
252	Two castles

265	Sequence of kings during the age of the castle
266	Genealogical table
270	Glossary
276	Catalogue of castles
285	Index of names and places
288	Historical sources
289	Bibliography
296	Summary in German

VESBORG, on the south-western tip of Samsø, was a strong fortress for a short time in the 14th century. It was built on several mounds. Much of the castle/site has now slipped down into the sea. Ruins of one of the castle buildings can still be seen from the shore below the remains of the mound where the lighthouse is now placed.